German Media Gets Nationalistic "The new anti-Semitism" By: Amit Sakal As of late 2015, the German political scene has seen a surge of nationalism and the rise of a "new" anti-Semitism, going back to a time when words such as "Aryan" gained popularity in the Nazi period.The truth is that the idea of nationalism has been part of the German society for decades. At the beginning of the 20th century, Germans saw themselves as being part of a European Union. But in the late 1930's, Germany's National Socialist Party changed their mind. This new nationalistic anti-Semitism is now spreading in German media, especially through the popular weekly magazine Bild-Zeitung. The far-right party is also dominating several other magazines, such as the right-wing newspaper Die Welt, and the right-wing satirical magazine Titanic, as well as other media outlets. In all this the mainstream media is keeping its silence and has not commented on it. On the contrary, it is giving support to the movement. The new-old anti-Semitism is making headlines. Last December, Bild-Zeitung published a satirical cartoon by German cartoonist Jan Böhmermann. In the background of the image, we see a statue of a man – head covered with a prayer shawl, holding a Star of David – in front of a number of people. The caption reads: "Glory to the Jews." The word "Anti-Semitism" is mentioned in the left-bottom corner of the image. And this was not the first such incident. Another similar racist joke appeared in the magazine Titanic, which is published by the Focus online publishing house. The satirical b7e8fd5c8
