----- In an initial step, the authors conducted a review of the literature and a scoping of existing models to develop a conceptual model that was mapped to the Delphi survey. They also assessed the existing models and literature regarding their suitability to the development of a model that could address the study questions. A model of institutional design that was tested for use in other countries and settings was identified, and the structure of the model was adapted to the study context. The authors developed a conceptual model that was mapped to the Delphi survey as described below. 82157476af
