This decision has now been affirmed by the Supreme Court. United States v. Halper, 490 U.S. 435, 109 S.Ct. 1892, 104 L.Ed.2d 487 (1989). With these events fresh in our minds, we think the proposed amendments would needlessly embroil the courts in disputes over the witness' claim that the consequences of his answer could be "disproportionately severe" and that it would be "a useless gesture" for him to answer. Congress was entitled to believe the courts would be just as sensitive to such claims as it is and that it could not be compelled to take action contrary to the principles of the Fifth Amendment. We find nothing in the proposed amendments to suggest otherwise. 9 The House Report provides a great deal of information about the background of the 1982 amendments to the Act. The report notes that: "Title 18 of the United States Code, as originally enacted, made it unlawful for a person to engage in a business enterprise involving interstate commerce for the purpose of evading any law and that any profits from such business were subject to criminal prosecution. These provisions were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court in the case of United States v. Kahrigar," H.R.Rep. No. 497, 97th Cong., 2d Sess. 3, reprinted in 1982 U.S.Code Cong. & Admin.News 2479, 2483. The report then details the efforts of Congress to "overhaul" the Internal Revenue Code. Id. at 2486. This report, together with the House Report on the 1983 amendments to the Act, H.R.Rep. No. 815, 98th Cong., 2d Sess. 12-13, reprinted in 1984 U.S.Code Cong. & Admin.News 697, 711-712, show Congress' reason for adopting the amendments. The 1986 report discusses the relationship between the 1982 amendments and the antitrust laws. H.R.Rep. No. 661, 99th 82157476af
